A shared commitment between government and industry to transform the construction sector

APRIL 2019
The following agencies have specific responsibilities in this Accord and are accountable for delivering the government commitments, and their monitoring and reporting.
MESSAGE FROM THE MINISTER

A thriving construction sector is vital to New Zealand's social and economic wellbeing. We need more affordable houses, safer and greener buildings, and new and upgraded infrastructure. Projections show signs of sustained growth in the industry over the next six years. The industry provides work for nearly 250,000 people and contributes around $15 billion to our economy each year.

We all rely on the sector for the built environment we live, work and play in and the infrastructure we depend on.

But right now the sector is facing challenges that compromise its ability to keep pace with our growing needs. The sector is grappling with skills and labour shortages, poor risk management, unclear regulations and construction pipeline, and a lack of coordinated leadership.

As both the industry regulator and a major client, government is in a position to help transform the sector. Through this Accord, we are committing to a new way of working with industry so we can meet the challenges together. The Accord is a significant first step in our partnership to tackle the issues holding the sector back, to work together to support a more productive, innovative and safer industry.

A high-performing construction sector is good for everyone. This Accord supports the Government’s overall plan for New Zealand—to create an economy that’s growing and working for us all, and to improve the wellbeing of New Zealanders and their families.

Hon Jenny Salesa
Minister for Building and Construction
MESSAGE FROM THE ACCORD DEVELOPMENT GROUP CHAIR

The development of the Construction Sector Accord represents a significant opportunity for the industry to partner with government to make real change in the construction sector.

The Government has given clear commitments to the industry and to the people of New Zealand to take transformative action in the sector. The Accord process is the chance for the industry, our clients and our people to align and respond.

Our role as the Accord Development Group has been to trigger a commitment across the industry to do things differently, and to hold each other to account on the promises we’re making here. Together with government, we have agreed a shared vision for the sector, identified the primary challenges we need to respond to, defined the behaviours we need to adopt and the areas we need to work on to create a new level of performance. We believe delivering change quickly requires a shift in industry culture that can only be achieved through collaboration with existing industry groups and representatives.

From here, the Group will oversee the development and delivery of the construction sector transformation plan. This phase of work has the Ministers’ endorsement and support amongst the industry. We are looking forward to engaging more widely with industry participants, customers, workers and suppliers in order to meet the significant challenges we face, then communicate a single plan with one clear voice.

We have an obligation to our people and to all New Zealanders to build a higher performing construction sector. This is an opportunity we are grabbing with both hands.

PURPOSE OF THE ACCORD

APPROACH
Government and industry leaders have agreed to take a two-phased approach to the Accord process.

This Accord document completes the first phase where government and industry have agreed a shared set of goals and principles that signal a new way of working together. The Accord sets out priority work areas and some high-level commitments to action for transformation.

In the next phase, the sector will collaborate on a wider basis to develop a more detailed construction sector transformation plan to meet the challenges and achieve the outcomes outlined in this Accord.

THE CHALLENGE

Both government and industry recognise there is a gap between where the sector is now and where it needs to be to meet the future needs of New Zealanders. This Accord is a joint commitment to make a step change towards becoming a higher-performing, more productive sector.

For success we need:

› Strong leadership and governance
› A connected and collaborative sector
› A broad workforce of qualified, competent and skilled people
› Investment in new technology and other innovation
› Whole-of-life thinking across the sector
› Positive behaviours that cultivate trust and respect
› Resilient businesses
› Good risk management and fair allocation
› Clear and effective regulations
› A world-class health and safety culture
› A well-planned and transparent public sector pipeline
› Fair, transparent and consistent procurement practices
› Cultures and behaviours that allow the industry to thrive and make construction a great place to work.
GUIDING PRINCIPLES

To meet these challenges the sector will need to work in a different way. As both clients and suppliers, our actions and decisions will be guided by four key principles that we will hold ourselves and each other accountable to:

Build trusting relationships
This means:
› Being accountable
› Acting with empathy and respect
› Focusing on delivering quality
› Being transparent on the value and allocation of risk
› Working in a collaborative and inclusive way

Be bold
This means:
› Fostering innovation, and research and development
› Not accepting conduct and culture contrary to the principles of the Accord
› Sharing success and learning from failure
› Focusing on whole-of-life value when buying and building
Value our people

This means:
› Fostering careers to nurture the industry’s future
› Recognising and rewarding effort and success
› Embracing diversity and inclusion
› Supporting better outcomes for Māori
› Prioritising health, safety and mental wellbeing

Act with collective responsibility

This means:
› Planning for the long term
› Acting as a custodian for the sector’s future
› Sharing knowledge and lessons learnt
› Prioritising environmental sustainability

We will follow these principles in our work and hold ourselves and each other to account if we fall below these standards.
PRIORITY WORK AREAS

Together we have identified a set of priority areas for action that will help us deliver our vision. The nature of the work areas means some will be jointly led, while others will be led primarily by government or industry, in consultation with each other.

1. Enhanced industry leadership, collaboration and organisation
   Collaborate and build stronger alignment between industry leaders to create a more coordinated response to the challenges facing the sector.

2. Better business performance
   Create and implement initiatives to develop high-performing businesses. Improve business resilience, productivity and profitability to ensure a healthy and sustainable industry.

3. Improved culture and reputation
   Promote a culture in the industry that supports trust between all parties throughout the value chain and the ecosystem that supports it. This is required to restore public confidence and improve the industry’s attractiveness to capable people.
4. Grow workforce capability and capacity
   Increase the number of skilled workers and lift the industry’s capability in order to meet New Zealand’s growing housing and infrastructure needs.

5. Better risk management and fairer risk allocation
   Rebalance risk in the sector so it sits with the party best able to manage it. Improve the understanding of construction risks and their impact and costs.

6. Improved health and safety at work
   Reduce the number of people being harmed by work and create a safe construction sector that supports wellbeing and improves productivity.

7. More houses and better durability
   Boost the supply of housing and ensure all new houses are built to perform well over their lifetime.

8. Better procurement practices and improved pipeline management
   Create a more certain, visible and better coordinated pipeline of government construction work. Improve government and industry procurement practices so they are more consistent, focus on good value and enable the industry to succeed.

9. Improved building regulatory systems and consenting processes
   Make changes to the regulatory system to better support and enable transformation in the construction sector.
GOVERNMENT COMMITMENTS

As both a regulator and a major client for the construction industry, the government has already committed to a programme of work that will contribute to the priority work areas.

Industry agree the government can have the most immediate impact in transforming the sector by helping build skills and capacity, better planning and communicating the construction pipeline, and improving the way it procures construction projects.

Grow workforce capability and capacity - Construction Skills Action Plan

This is a cross-agency plan to encourage more people into construction careers and increase business investment in training and development. Phase one of the plan includes several initiatives aimed at raising capacity in the sector. Future phases will focus on lifting capability.

The plan includes proposed changes to the government’s procurement rules that will incentivise firms to invest in training by making it part of the criteria for tender evaluations.

Improved pipeline management - a new independent infrastructure body

The government will establish the New Zealand Infrastructure Commission, Te Waihanga, to create a coordinated long-term plan for all government construction projects. Work is already underway within Treasury to publish a pipeline of upcoming projects to provide greater certainty to the industry and encourage investment in skills and technology.

Better procurement practices - new rules and capability support

Changes to the government’s procurement rules and the construction procurement guides will:

› require agencies to apply the best practice set out in the guides where appropriate, and better support them to do so
› provide more detail on risk to improve agencies’ understanding and ability to manage it
› require most agencies to submit an assessment on their general procurement performance so areas for improvement can be identified

The new Infrastructure Commission will also provide support and guidance to agencies on their major procurement projects. It will introduce a whole-of-life approach to infrastructure projects so the cheapest price is not chosen over the best long-term value.

Other government commitments that will contribute to the priorities include building regulatory reform, new ways of working with industry to make building state houses more efficient, initiatives to improve the building consenting process, and health and safety initiatives to reduce harm in the industry.

See loose leaf insert for more detail on government commitments to transformation.
INDUSTRY COMMITMENTS

The industry supports the government’s commitments and will be a key partner in their delivery. It will provide coordinated consultation and advice to support decision-making and action.

The Accord Development Group recognises industry must play a significant role in sector transformation and there are a number of initiatives already planned and underway. Our early commitments to the priority work areas are focused on collaboration, health and safety, skills, and risk management.

Enhanced leadership, collaboration and organisation – coordinate industry representation and initiatives

The Accord Development Group is committed to working with government to deliver a construction sector transformation plan by the end of 2019. In this second phase of the Accord process, the Group will work with wider sector representatives to consult, build support and incorporate existing work programmes into the transformation plan.

Improved health and safety – industry-led changes to culture and approach

The industry is committed to supporting Construction Health and Safety New Zealand (CHASNZ) to take leadership on improving health and safety performance in the industry. CHASNZ will target clear expectations, consistency of standards, and workforce competency across the industry. It will support health and safety as an integral part of construction business ensuring there is a specific focus on information sharing, worker engagement and empowerment, mental health and wellbeing, and safety leadership as an ethical responsibility across the supply chain.

Better risk management – knowledge sharing

The Group will initiate the development of a workshop programme for industry training and knowledge sharing on risk management, within six months. This programme will build the industry’s capability to understand, value and manage risk.

Grow workforce capability and capacity – partnering to address skill gaps

The Group will support the government Construction Skills Action Plan by collaborating with the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment to assist in identifying specific skill shortage areas and future requirements. Industry, government and education providers will then collaborate through the second stage of the Construction Skills Action Plan to build capability where needed.

Work together to develop a plan for change that has collective intent
